

Rediscovering Biblical Foundations in Ghana

Ghana is often seen as a vibrant Christian nation. Churches are plentiful and faith is visible. Yet, many pastors quietly acknowledge a troubling reality: biblical foundations are fading, and the focus has shifted from disciple-making to simply counting members. That's why Harvesters' work in Ghana is so crucial.

In the first half of 2025, Harvesters held training in strategic locations – including Kumasi, Obuasi, Koforidua and the capital, Accra. In each place, pastors are engaging in a four-year programme designed to train and release church leaders to plant multiplying, disciple-making churches.

Those who participated are already seeing transformation. In Kintampo, Bismarck Asemeno Yeboah shared, "We are brought back to the foundation of the church. The church has gone wayward... now, by this glorious training, we are brought back to it." He continued, "Our focus has always been on membership... but not on the disciples."

In Koforidua, one attendee emphasised urgency and simplicity: "We don't have to wait until we get a large population before we start the church. If we are two or more, we can begin a church, whether in a room or under a tree." Rev Dr Daniel, also in Koforidua, echoed this, noting that a church can begin with just one or two in a home. "You can teach them and disciple them," he said. "It has simplified the work for us."

From pastors in the north reaching into Togo and Burkina Faso, to leaders in Accra reimagining church growth, one theme is clear: the foundation is being restored. This is New Testament church growth – one disciple, one church at a time. 📖

Lives Transformed Around the World

From the mountains of Peru to the steppes of Mongolia, God is using Harvesters to equip, empower and mobilise believers to make disciples and plant churches. These testimonies reveal the life-changing impact of biblical training, Spirit-led evangelism and faithful local partnerships. With the support of friends like you, Harvesters continues to come alongside pastors, providing the tools and training they need to fulfil the Great Commission in their own communities. At the centre of this movement is multiplication – disciples making disciples, leaders raising leaders, and churches planting churches. The impact is local, global – and growing!

Henry Berrilla – Peru, South America

"I want to thank Harvesters for the support they have given us, especially in the Quechua-speaking area, so that we could receive this training and plant churches. Up to now, we have planted 8 churches with the support of Harvesters. The material has truly been a great help to me and to the churches that have been planted in various locations."

Malifomo Sello – Lesotho, Southern Africa

"I feel truly privileged to have had the opportunity to be part of Harvesters' Kick Off event in Mokhotlong. I thank God that on the very first day, we were given an assignment to go out and evangelise. Using the Heart of Man evangelism tool, I shared the Gospel with someone. Even before I could fully explain what the chart represented, she was already moved to tears by the message. I'm also deeply encouraged because I've realised areas in my ministry where I've fallen short and where I need to grow."

Mahrous – Egypt, North Africa

"I've learned a lot from Harvesters Ministries. The curriculum is excellent, well-organised and grounded in spiritual disciplines. It begins by focusing on the character of a servant of God, helping us become disciplined, self-controlled, and committed to a holy life. One of the most valuable aspects of the Harvesters approach is its simplicity. Our disciples have also started their own discipleship groups using the Harvesters phases."

Stream Leader – Ivory Coast, West Africa

"My heart is full of joy and gratitude. We've just completed Phase A of the training and I feel truly blessed. This was my vision – to train leaders and plant churches – but I needed to be equipped. Through this programme I found the answer. All the pastors in the Botro area have been mobilised. Our dream is to reach every community in Botro and see Boake and the surrounding region filled with churches."

Matthews – Mozambique, East Africa

"In August 2024, we were trained with the Heart of Man Evangelism Chart. After the training, I went door-to-door to evangelise. On the first day, I reached 10 people. On the third day, 50 people accepted the Lord. From there, I started a discipleship class – now this new church has 80 members. I have planted two churches and I will plant more until I finish this course."

Wilfred Mwangi
– Kenya, East Africa

“My desire to have Harvesters in Nyandarua is because we are faced with many spiritual challenges, including the rise of occult practices. We need Bible-based churches. Harvesters will help us address this need, strengthen our churches, and bear fruit for the Kingdom of God.”

Simon Patrick Pandula – Tanzania, East Africa

“I want to thank God for this incredible teaching. Although I’ve attended several Bible schools before, the teachings here are exceptionally clear and easy to understand. Since beginning this training, I’ve been able to plant six churches, and I have many opportunities to plant even more thanks to what I’ve learned.”

Jeremiah – Tanzania, East Africa

“This training has been of great benefit to me. I’ve planted 12 churches, and I’ve disciplined others using the Harvesters model. I trained a young man named Alex to plant the 13th church, but God had a different plan. Alex ended up in prison – but while there, he preached the Gospel and 70 inmates gave their lives to Christ. What we had planned outside the prison, God fulfilled inside. I have seen the Lord at work in powerful ways.”

Marian – Wales, Europe

“I already run a small group, so I’m actually quite excited now about taking forward what I’ve just learned today to my small group so that I can now disciple them in how to disciple. But the loveliest thing we did when we did an exercise about just sharing about two, three minutes of our life story and getting the five points across about what actually is the Gospel, and I was really thrilled about how easy it was to tell my story but still get the Gospel in. I found that really encouraging.”

Joy – Mongolia, Asia

“Harvesters’ training has truly opened our eyes. It has been a wonderful training to remind us the reason why we serve the Lord. It’s been only 35 years since Mongolia came to know the name of Jesus. There were only four known believers in 1988. And although many missionaries came to Mongolia, we didn’t truly understand the ways that we could plant churches, the ways that we truly evangelise. We are overjoyed that Harvesters’ training has answered all the questions that we had that we didn’t even know that we had.”

A New Dream:

From Filling Seats to Planting Churches

Rev. Warren Lötter, a pastor in Parow, South Africa, recently started the Disciple Makers journey at his church – and it sparked a deep shift in vision. Once focused on growing Sunday attendance, Warren now dreams of something greater: multiplying disciples and planting churches across the northern suburbs of Cape Town. “The Lord changed my dream,” he shared. “It’s no longer just about filling this church with people, but about being used to plant churches – from Parow to Paarl to Stellenbosch – where disciples make disciples.”

The Disciple Makers sessions challenged Warren and his church to return to the foundations of the Great Commission: sharing the Gospel, discipling others and pursuing multiplication. What began as a nine-session course became the launchpad for a bold, faith-filled dream.

With joy and faith, the church now trusts God to plant one new church by Pentecost next year. “And maybe you can pray with us that the Lord will help us to achieve that,” asks Warren. ✉
